UACES is looking for a host for our 50th Annual Conference in 2020.

The conference has a strong tradition as an interdisciplinary research conference which welcomes papers from all areas of contemporary European Studies including Political Science, Economics, Law, Geography, History and Sociology. Typically, the conference receives around 600 paper proposals from academics based in over 50 different countries.

In recent years, the conference has been growing in size and potential hosts for the 2020 conference will need to be able to accommodate circa 450 participants over the three-day event.

Further details, including how to apply, can be found at: www.uaces.org/2020

The deadline to receive expressions of interest is 30 September 2017.

If you are interested in hosting the conference, please come and talk to the UACES staff here in Kraków, or any of the UACES Officers. This event is an excellent opportunity to talk to us in person, in advance of the deadline.

In 2018, we will be hosted by the University of Bath, UK (more on p.29) and in 2019, the University of Lisbon, Portugal.

UACES Lifetime Achievement Award in European Studies

UACES is delighted to announce that Jo Shaw has been awarded the UACES Lifetime Achievement Award for her contribution to contemporary European Studies. The award will be presented at the Conference Dinner.

We’ve asked some friends and colleagues to write a few words about Jo...

“Jo Shaw has made (and continues to make) an outstanding contribution to the field of European Studies. Academically, she is one of the few truly interdisciplinary scholars who is as comfortable in the legal world as she is conducting empirical research or contributing to debates in political science. Through her research and teaching she has inspired a generation of younger scholars from different backgrounds to follow her into working in the field of European Studies. As a colleague and PhD supervisor she stands out for being incredibly supportive, reliable and fiercely loyal. It is not a coincidence that she was a guest at a number of her PhD students’ weddings! She is a true academic citizen; always prepared to help younger scholars and to take on thankless, selfless and often invisible tasks such as peer reviewing. At the same time as all of this, she has somehow managed to maintain interests and friendships outside of academia. She is a remarkable woman who has had a profound impact on European Studies and would be a very worthy recipient of the UACES Lifetime Achievement Award.”

Rebecca Zahn, University of Strathclyde

“Jo fully deserves the UACES life-time award for her scholarship on EU law and her comparative constitutional ethnography of citizenship. She also deserves it as a good citizen of academia who has devoted much of her time to building institutions and networks where academic research could flourish. Most importantly, she is also a people-builder who has helped countless numbers of young academics to grow and find their way in the academic jungle that we call our home.”

Rainer Bauböck, European University Institute

“When I first met Jo Shaw in a Cafe near the Edinburgh Law School at 11.45 on 1 June 2009, I never would have thought that she would become so important in my life. I admire her not only for her intellect and the passion for exploring the frontiers of knowledge, but also for her kindness, creativity and sense of justice. Jo’s exceptional academic work is worthy of highest professional praise. Yet, for me, her dedication to nurturing talent and guiding a new generation of young scholars through the murky waters of academia is a lifetime achievement in and of itself.”

Jelena Dzankic, European University Institute

“The name of Jo Shaw stands across Europe for rigorous scholarship, intellectual curiosity, international engagement and personal qualities. I was fortunate to work with Jo for five years at the CITSEE project dedicated to citizenship in Southeast Europe. This collaboration allowed me to observe closely her vigorous academic activities but also her interests in art, history, literature, and photography. The UACES Lifetime Achievement Award should be understood both as a deserved recognition of Jo’s work and career and as the opening of a new chapter in the life of this brilliant scholar.”

Igor Stiks, University of Edinburgh

“Jo Shaw has made (and continues to make) an outstanding contribution to the field of European Studies. Academically, she is one of the few truly interdisciplinary scholars who is as comfortable in the legal world as she is conducting empirical research or contributing to debates in political science. Through her research and teaching she has inspired a generation of younger scholars from different backgrounds to follow her into working in the field of European Studies. As a colleague and PhD supervisor she stands out for being incredibly supportive, reliable and fiercely loyal. It is not a coincidence that she was a guest at a number of her PhD students’ weddings! She is a true academic citizen; always prepared to help younger scholars and to take on thankless, selfless and often invisible tasks such as peer reviewing. At the same time as all of this, she has somehow managed to maintain interests and friendships outside of academia. She is a remarkable woman who has had a profound impact on European Studies and would be a very worth recipient of the UACES Lifetime Achievement Award.”

Rebecca Zahn, University of Strathclyde

“I am delighted that Jo has won the UACES Lifetime Achievement Award for her contribution to EU studies scholarship. Jo is drawn to complex and contested issues. Her hard work and incredible commitment mean that her work reaches across disciplines and beyond traditional boundaries, both intellectual and physical. I also want to acknowledge her contribution to the EU studies community. Through her leadership and loyalty, she has supported early career researchers, from across the EU and beyond, and for which I am personally grateful. It is also why she famously has ‘so many young people’ at her parties!”

Nina Miller-Westoby, University of Glasgow

50 Years of UACES: our Golden Anniversary

Your association is celebrating its 50th anniversary. We look forward to supporting our international, interdisciplinary membership over the next 50 years as the hub for expertise on Europe. We are running activities and events throughout 2017-18 to mark our Golden year:

Europe in the Archives, Europe in the Future
12-13 October 2017, European University Institute (EUI)

This conference will examine how European Studies and UK-EU relations have developed over the last 50 years, and what the future holds. Free for members: uaces.org/florence

Europe at a Crossroads: Student Forum Annual Conference

In July, 30 postgraduate and early career researchers gathered in Newcastle to examine the challenges facing Europe, the historical developments which have led to them, and perspectives on the EU’s future.

UACES 50th Birthday Celebration
8 December 2017, London

Join us for a celebratory evening in London this Winter. A panel discussion with previous chairs of UACES will be followed by a drinks reception. Look out for invitations by email.

First Look at the UACES Archives

Quincy Cloet, Aberystwyth University, was awarded funding to travel to the EUI and conduct research in the newly-deposited UACES archives. Quincy will present his findings at the ‘Europe in the Archives, Europe in the Future’ conference. Watch a short Q&A with Quincy about his research: bit.ly/uaces-archives

The Journal of Contemporary European Research (JCER) will be publishing a very special UACES 50th Anniversary multimedia issue, which all UACES members will receive.

UACES is running an ‘Expert on Europe’ series of video interviews and podcasts to share our members’ work and research with the wider public. Find them at uaces.org/fifty. Get in touch to take part.

Call for Your UACES Memories

We’re collecting memories of UACES (1967-2017) from members. Please send us your photos, interesting documents, written memories, or any other format, by email or post, or ask us to help with the practicalities. We’d also love to hear from people who would like to be recorded talking briefly about their memories, during or after the conference.
Getting to the Conference Dinner

Route from Audytorium Maximum

Walk west on Krupniza towards aleja Adama Mickiewicza.

After 120m, turn left onto aleja Adama Mickiewicza.

After 350m, continue onto aleja Zygmunta Krasinckiego / Aleje Trzech Wieszczow / II obwodnica.

After 1.1km, take a slight left onto Marri Knopnickiej.

The Manggha Museum will be on your left.

Don’t forget your ticket!
Expert on Europe

All Individual and Student members of UACES are eligible to join Expert on Europe; a searchable directory of experts from all disciplines on Europe and the European Union.

The site allows you to promote your work and research and to connect with your fellow UACES members. You can:
- Update your profile, including biography, areas of expertise, media experience, links to social media and other academic profiles
- Search for members according to keywords, research interests, hot topics, discipline, language, country of residence, institution and more.

If you would like to sign up, please email admin@uaces.org.

Questions about publishing?

Get them answered in Panel 315.

Tweet @UACES_SF or post on facebook.com/UACESStudentForum with the hashtag #askthepublisher and they’ll be answered live during the session.

Student Forum Elections 2018

Are you keen to get more involved with UACES and represent the postgraduate European Studies community?

In November 2017, the UACES Student Forum will be looking for 3 new committee members. The committee is responsible for the organisation of the annual research student conference and doctoral training days. Committee members are also involved in the production of UACES’s open-access journal JCER. For more information about standing for election visit: www.uaces.org/sf/elections or speak to the current SF Chair, Anna Wambach, at the SF drinks.

UACES 2018 in Bath: Romans and Regency

The UACES 48th Annual Conference takes place from the 3-5 September 2018 in Bath, UK. The conference will be hosted by the Department of Politics, Languages and International Studies (PoLIS) at the University of Bath.

We hope you can come and join us next year in the UNESCO World Heritage city of Bath.

About Bath

Bath, located in the valley of the river Avon and only 90 minutes away from London by train, is known for its Roman-built bath, hot springs and grandiose Neo-Classical architecture crafted from Bath stone. A popular spa town in the Georgian era, this unique, beautiful and creative city became a World Heritage Site in 1987 and attracts more than one million staying visitors and 3.8 million day visitors each year.

The conference hosts

The University of Bath is one of the leading higher education institutions in the United Kingdom for research, teaching and student satisfaction. Founded in 1966, it ranked 11th in the 2013 QS World University Rankings list “Top 50 Under 50”. With its research grant portfolio valued at over £125 million, the university prides itself on its vibrant and welcoming culture driven by the enthusiasm and invention of the academic community. A robust infrastructure supports the development of research, 87% of which deemed world-leading or internationally excellent in the latest research excellence framework (REF). The campus that overlooks the beautiful UNESCO World Heritage City, offers cutting edge teaching, recreation and sport facilities including a £10 million arts building called the Edge.

The Department of Politics, Languages and International Studies (PoLIS) is based in the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences. Much of the Faculty’s research is interdisciplinary and cross-faculty at both staff and student levels. In conjunction with the university-wide Institute for Policy Research, the Faculty has a strong focus on European Studies, policy development and issues of social inequality, international security and migration. At the national level, the Faculty is currently a member of two doctoral training consortia funded by the Arts and Humanities Research Council (UK) and the Economic and Social Research Council (UK). Many PoLIS staff are internationally leading scholars in their field and publish regularly in the most highly ranked international journals.

With both UACES and the University of Bath celebrating their respective 50th anniversaries, #UACES2018 is set to be a memorable occasion.
