Negotiating Brexit: Views from the Member States - a Podcast Series

As a new era begins, we are delighted to announce the launch of a podcast series 'Negotiating Brexit: views from the member states’ which investigates the EU member states’ perspectives on the UK referendum and its aftermath, EU negotiations with the UK, and prospects for the UK’s bilateral relations with its European neighbours.

Hosted by UEA's Cleo Davies and Hussein Kassim, guests include Eva Heidbreder and Nicolai Von Ordana on Germany, Christian Lequesne and Pauline Schnapper on France, Salvador Llaudes and Ignacio Molina on Spain, Catherine de Vries and Rem Korteweg on The Netherlands, Przemysław Biskup and Natasza Styczyńska on Poland, Rebecca Adler-Nissen and Sara Hagemann on Denmark, Piret Kuusik and Ramūnas Vilišauskas on Estonia and Lithuania, and Brigid Laffan and Mary C. Murphy on Ireland.

The series is produced by Sophie Ludkin. It is funded as part of Hussein Kassim's 'UK in a Changing Europe' Senior Fellowship.

Archival Research Trip

In partnership with the James Madison Charitable Trust, we are delighted to offer a scholarship for a PhD or Early-Career researcher to visit the Historical Archives of the European Union (HAEU) in Florence for 5-10 working days and conduct archival research. This can take place any time this year and when it’s safe to do so.

Generous funding of £1300 is on offer for the successful applicant. £1000 is to cover travel, accommodation and subsistence whilst in Florence, while £300 is to cover costs for attending the UACES annual conference in 2022 in Lille.
The successful applicant will be expected to submit a paper or panel proposal based on the research that they conduct at the archives for the UACES Annual Conference taking place in Lille in 2022 (the call for papers will open in October 2021).

Apply until 7 Feb

UACES Scholarships Recipients

We are delighted to introduce the UACES scholarship recipients 2020. Here is who they are:

Antonio Salvador Alcazar III, Central European University

Antonio’s fieldwork proposes to interrogate the radical transformation of Myanmar’s garment economy under the EU marketspace, particularly by virtue of the ‘Everything but Arms’ policy. To this end, his six-week fieldwork aims at interviewing trade policy elites and subjects through multi-sited ethnographic encounters in Yangon, Naypyidaw, and Mandalay. It will also help Antonio to build collaborative relationships with local research communities. Thus, his fieldwork is a crucial first step in understanding how different actors in post-2015 Myanmar negotiate and make sense of, what it means to marketise and manufacture market ties with the EU in a globalised garment trading order.

Juliette Ganne, the Graduate Institute Geneva

This research trip will take place in summer 2021 in Bangui, Central African Republic (CAR). The aim is to collect primary data through interviews and surveys with civilian and military staffers working for international and regional organizations (the European Union, United Nations, and African Union). This trip will be my last round of fieldwork in CAR, and will be coupled with interviews done at the headquarters of these same organizations. These interviews will be the basis of an empirical examination of patterns of interactions in the international community in settings where multiple multinational organizations are intervening simultaneously.

Gerard Casas Soler, Universitat Pompeu Fabra
In my fieldwork I will consult the Archives of the Commission of the European Economic Community (1958-1967) as well as those of the European Commission (1968-1981) and I will look for federal "ideas", mainly in speeches and other public interventions of the presidents of those institutions. Both collections include the presidencies of Walter Hallstein, Jean Rey, Franco M. Malfatti, Sicco Mansholt, François X. Ortoli and Roy Jenkins. Moreover, I will also check the individual archives of Jacques Delors (president between 1985 and 1995) and Romano Prodi (1999-2004).

Lukas Spielberger, Leiden University
Lukas Spielberger is a third-year PhD researcher at Leiden University and works on cooperation between central banks during international financial crises. During his field work, he is planning on travelling to Sweden, Denmark and the Baltic countries in order to interview central bankers about the resolution of the crisis in 2008-10. The insights from these interviews will inform his theoretical work on the objectives that central banks pursue and the reasons why some central banks received worse credit terms than others.

New JCER Editors

We are delighted to announce that we have appointed two new editors for the Journal of Contemporary European Studies.

Rachael Dickson (University of Birmingham) is the new JCER Editor and Nele Marianne Ewers-Peters (John Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies) is taking on the role of Teaching, Learning and the Profession Section Editor.

Congratulations to both and welcome to the JCER team.
