Message from the Chair

The period between September 2019 and December 2020 certainly posed challenges for UACES: faced with the realities of the UK's departure from the EU and the ongoing Covid pandemic. The 31st of January 2020 was for many of us a day of reflection and contemplation. Myself and my fellow UACES officers issued a statement in January 2020 where we raised our concern (sadly to no avail) about the UK not remaining part of the Erasmus+ scheme. We flagged up its potential, negative impact on our members, the students we teach, our university departments and the wider discipline of European Studies. On the plus side, our Jean Monnet Support to Associations grant will continue to help us to support our Graduate Forum events (as well our Research Networks) for the foreseeable future.

Away from Brexit, Covid has continued to challenge us professionally as an academic community as we have adapted to the realities of teaching, researching, and staying in touch in a virtual environment. I have been impressed by the camaraderie and support of UACES members on social media as we have been confronted by the realities of Covid both professionally and personally. This camaraderie, and, with it, the resilience and dynamism that UACES has demonstrated, is in no small part due to the fantastic work of our UACES office team. Let me say a huge thank you to Emily Linnemann (our Executive Director), to Emma Marlow (our Events and Membership officer) and to Melina Dieckgräber (our Digital Communications Manager). They have been brilliant in keeping the flame of UACES very much alive in the virtual environment. This included, at the beginning of the pandemic, setting up a series of 'midweek meetups' where members discussed a range of topics such as work-life balance and ideas for online teaching, as well as a #FeatureFriday.

Our first ever virtual conference in September 2020 was a success with more than 380 delegates registering for the event. The 75 panels on offer really underlined the interdisciplinary strength of UACES. The conference plenary (entitled 'Equal and Inclusive? Responsibility and transformation in European Studies') produced a wide-ranging and nuanced discussion. Can I take this opportunity to thank all those UACES members and supporters who contributed in response to our appeal for funding to help bridge the gap in our loss of revenue due to the cancellation of the annual conference in Belfast? We much look forward to going back to Belfast for the 2023 Annual Conference. As it transpires, we were also unable to run UACES 2021 as an 'in person' conference in Liverpool, and we ran our second virtual conference in September, details of which will appear in next year's Annual Report.

Our Graduate Forum (GF) continues to maintain a high, outward profile. The GF launched an online research series at the beginning of the pandemic which helped to keep our PhD students and Early Career Researchers connected. In November 2019, the GF hosted its annual Doctoral Training Academy (DTA) in Brussels and a year later, in November 2020, the DTA was run as an online event which again proved a success. I would like to take this opportunity to thank outgoing GF Chair Dr Rachel Dickson for her excellent work in the role and to welcome Dr Olga Litvyak as the new Chair as of January 2021. The GF is crucial to the future success of our Association and it's great to see such a vibrant post-graduate community at the forefront of European Studies.

In other news, our new website was launched in September 2020, and I am sure that members will agree that this was a very positive development. We continue to look at ways of increasing our income streams faced with the various challenges ahead and the new website will certainly help as we seek to shore-up our membership base. It's crucial over the next few years that we continue to further internationalise our membership profile and to seek to grow the number of practitioner and group members.

It is clear from this Annual Report that UACES remains very active with a robust, outward profile. This is demonstrated by our developing portfolio of exciting Research Networks, our excellent journal and book series publications, the scholarship and funding opportunities that we offer, our annual prizes and awards, and, of course by the wide-range of events we offer - many of which I hope will be able to revert to in-person gatherings in the near future!

My thanks to our Equality, Diversity and Inclusion (EDI) officer Professor Roberta Guerrina and the EDI committee for advancing our EDI policy and processes. This is a very important development for the Association. I would like to take this opportunity to thank all of our Research Network Convenors and our journal and book series editors for all of their hard work and contributions. Finally, I would like to record my appreciation to all our committee members and our Officers for everything they have done to advance the cause of UACES during this challenging period.

I am convinced that UACES will continue to have a crucial role to play in advancing the study of Europe and the EU in the future. I look forward to seeing many of you in Lille for the Annual Conference in September. I wish Professor Simon Usherwood all the very best in his role as the new Chair of UACES and I thank you all for your ongoing support of our unique Association.

Dr Nicholas Startin (Chair, 2018-2021)
